U.S. Lodging Industry H2 2024

Unprecedented Events

- One month prior to this year's Democratic National Convention, U.S. President Joe Biden, having earned sufficient delegates to be the party nominee, withdrew his candidacy and was replaced by current VP Kamala Harris.
- Two assassination attempts were made on a former U.S. President who once again ran for the office.
- One year after the horrific events of October 7, 2023, the Middle East has been on the brink of a regional war.
- The largest outage in the history of information technology occurred when cybersecurity company CrowdStrike distributed a faulty update to its software that caused millions of systems to crash which caused massive disruptions for major airlines, health care service providers, 911 emergency systems, retail payment systems and millions of people throughout the globe.
- Amid signs that inflation was moderating, and the labor market was weakening, The U.S. Federal Reserve (Fed) has lowered the overnight borrowing rate twice by a total of 75 basis points.
- A deeply divided America just held the most consequential presidential election in a generation.

U.S. Lodging Industry H2 2024

U.S. Election

- U.S. Presidency will be changing hands for the third time in eight years, the biggest period of White House instability since the 1970s.
- A unified government (President, House, & Senate) Republican Party will usher in transformative period.
 - Growth oriented policies, lower regulation, strong pro-business environment.
- Commercial real estate (CRE) will be presented with opportunities and challenges.
 - Expansion focused policies can increase the value of real estate assets as rising costs drive up replacement values.
 - Growth centric policies often have inflationary effects, impacting borrowing costs and property values.
 - Higher interest rates, driven by the need to manage inflation, could reshape financing dynamics in CRE, with capital costs likely to adjust to a “higher for longer” rate environment.
- CRE is on the brink of unprecedented investment opportunities.
 - Future may be volatile however potential for generating Alpha is unprecedented.

2. ECONOMIC LANDSCAPE

2.1 Short-Term Worries

The State Of Travel 2024

Travel CEOs Maintain a Mostly Positive Outlook

Our addressable market is growing, and we are attracting more customers into our vacation ecosystem. New-to-cruise customers are up double digits versus last year, and at the same time, we are seeing stronger repeat rates.

- Jason T. Liberty

The reason I use 'normalization' is not to be cute, for the full year, we will globally see growth in all segments. It will be very, very low in leisure transient, but positive; a little bit higher on business transient, and then very, very strong for meetings and events.

- Christopher J. Nassetta

From a regional perspective, we observed a mild moderation of travel market growth in Europe. However, we believe we're continuing to perform well relative to the market in Europe. Looking at our other regions, we continue to see high growth levels in Asia and a slight improvement in growth in the U.S.

- Glen D. Fogel

The solid start of the year has allowed us to upgrade our RevPAR guidance. We expect strong momentum in the Middle East, Southeast Asia, and continued robust demand in Europe, bolstered by the Paris Olympics.

- Sebastien Bazin

On a global basis, in the second quarter, we saw RevPAR growth across all 3 of our customer segments, group, leisure transient and business transient, with each segment experiencing increases in both room nights and average daily rate.

- Anthony G. Capuano

Travel remains a top purchase priority and Delta's core customers are in a healthy position. The secular shift in consumer spend to prioritize experiences align perfectly with Delta's strategy and premium focus across our global network.

- Edward H. Bastian

Kastle customers are in more than 2,600 buildings in 138 cities. The Barometer reflects swipes of Kastle access controls from the top 10 cities, averaged weekly. It summarizes recent weekday building access activity among our business partners, not a national statistical sample.

*On March 22, 2023, Kastle received data from a major business partner, not a national statistical sample. We have recalculated data back to the start of the time series for consistency. This has only a marginal impact on most cities and the national average.

Data reported for Monday, October 14, 2024 is using an average of the previous four Mondays. Rather than omit the federal holiday from the weekly average, the substitution more accurately reflects prevailing trends to return to office.
